NEW GENERATION OF DISH ANTENNA TO BE INTRODUCED IN THE US

-----

DONE WITH THE DISH?

NOT QUITE YET

For Immediate Release

MIAMI --- Satellite users who have struggled with a visible classic dish antenna will now be able to keep it discreet from landlords, neighbors, and homeowner associations, thanks to CubSat.

CubSat is a new generation of dish antenna built in a case molded from ABS plastic, permitting perfect reception of analog, digital and high-definition programs. It can be half buried in a garden, painted, fixed on a wall or put down on the ground. The size and the shape of CubSat allow an almost invisible installation anywhere, avoiding complaints from neighbors, landlords, and homeowner associations.

This award-winning product requires no special skills, knowledge or tools to be installed. It works with any satellite provider, like Direct TV or Dish Network.

Thanks to its ABS sealed case with a cover, CubSat prevents the technical equipment of the dish from damage caused by lightning, rain, snow and the constant aggression of weather variations. It is also moisture-sealed and keeps wind, dust, sand and dirt away from the technical equipment inside the box.

Compared to regular dishes, CubSat does not require any special maintenance. It has three years warranty. Furthermore, it comes in different versions and can be used for up to four users. CubSat works anywhere inside the United States and retail price starts at $199.

The product is already available on the market. Its official launching will be at the CES show in Las Vegas from Thursday, Jan. 8th to Sunday, Jan. 11th.

International Trade Business, based in Miami, Florida, is the U.S official exclusive distributor and manufacturer of CubSat.
